SHINE, SHAVE, HAIR-CUT—
ALL BY ELECTRICITY

Tonsorial artists will lay aside the scissors and comb if they would be up-to-date, and henceforth hasten the trimming of heads of hair by using the electric shavers, thus allowing them to crowd several hair-cuts into an hour's work. But that is not all the new electric hair-cutter promises. It means greater comfort to the patron as well, for it facilitates the removal of excess hair without the agony sometimes occasioned by the lack of a proper edge on the barber's shears. Then if the patron would have it long or short with clippers "up the side" the electric hair cutter may be adjusted to cut hair to the length desired. A small electric motor operating at a cost of not more than half a cent an hour drives the hair cutters, and the current may be tapped from any convenient electric lamp socket with a cord and plug.

COUNTRY PAPERS

STICK TO FACTS

Just how thoroughly the country newspaper appreciates the value of truth in news is demonstrated by L. B. Funk, publisher of the Oak Hill (O.) Press, in a reply to criticism of the country press recently volunteered by an advertising man attached to one of the larger agencies. The criticism was offered that country newspapers publish matters of trivial moment, the critic evidently failing to view "news" from anything but a metropolitan standpoint. This is what Mr. Funk has to say in answer to the charge:

These fellows sit back in their swivel chairs in their city offices and try to measure country people by the same false half bushel measure that is so often used in computing the value of city folks. They know the city people are not what they seem, yet they try to apply the same thoughts and actions to the free and straightforward people of the open country.

This offender says he often reads in the rural weeklies such items as "John Smith has painted his barn." He then argues there is no news value in such items. He does not know what he is talking about. Such items are the most valuable of those published by the country weeklies. Such items are true and are told in a simple manner. Make a comparison of the item the city brother holds up to ridicule with any of the society and other platitudinous articles that fill the columns of the big dailies.

Just the other day we read an account of a marriage in one of the big city papers. Here are some excerpts: "The bride is the beautiful and charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. —. Her beauty has won for her many compliments; her personal charm is of a great magnetic force; her activity in church work has been so great that it will be hard to find another to fill her place. She is held in the highest esteem by all, and her companions are glad to see her happily married, yet are sorry to lose her from their ranks." Then followed a lot of similar gushy junk about the bridegroom.

Now, if it so happens we have known the contracting parties for many years. The bride is a homely girl. She joined the church when a girl in her teens and attended the different meetings as much as and no more than the ordinary citizens. For each person who can be found to speak a good word for her we will guarantee to rake up a dozen who will swear she is a snob. And the groom can be measured in the small measure.

The marriage should have been reported about like this: "On Wednesday evening, May 3, Miss Susan Sunbunnet was married to Sammy Stubblefield." It is always better to tell the truth and then stop.

If the country paper was to take a leaf out of the book of the city paper it would report the barn painting somewhat after this manner:

"John Smith two weeks ago secured the services of two of the most artistic painters and decorators the county affords. They brought with them all the ingredients for mixing their own colors. After sandpapering the barn and finally rubbing it down with pumice stone the artists made repeated tests in an effort to secure just the right shade to bring the barn into sympathy with the landscape at all seasons of the year. The color selected is such as was never seen before, for it was compounded for this one job. The work has now been finished and it is superb."

If the editor of the rural weekly told as many lies in his paper as his city brother does he would be drummed out of town as the greatest ass that ever happened.

JUDGE ORTEN WRITES
FROM COLORADO SPRINGS

Editor Farmington Times:

If you will allow me the space in your paper, I will mention some of the things that I observed while on my way to this beautiful little city, Colorado Springs. I left Farmington at 4:30 a. m., July 4th. I reached Tower Grove station, St. Louis, at about 9 o'clock, and caught the Missouri Pacific Limited at this place at 9:10 a. m. for the West. As it swiftly glided through the hills and valleys, I paid particular attention to what was being raised through this section of our great State; I noticed that the wheat was generally good but not a large acreage out. Corn and oats a large acreage and looking fine. When we reached the Missouri River bottoms, there I saw some of the finest wheat I ever saw. Judging from the way the shocks stood, it would yield about 40 bushels per acre. Corn, oats, alfalfa and potatoes all looking fine. All the way along the road to Sedalia, Mo., indicating a large acreage of all and a bumper crop of each for Missouri.

We noticed, between Jefferson City, our beautiful Capitol, and Tipton and Sedalia, two other beautiful little cities and some very fine, well-kept farms.

Now we come to Kansas City, a railroad center and a hustling, busy city. Our stay here was short, so we passed swiftly into the State of Kansas, where we noticed for miles large fields yellow with the golden grain, large acreage of corn, oats, alfalfa and potatoes, promising a large yield for Kansas; all making the most skeptic believe that these two States will have plenty, and some to spare.

Darkness came on us, we closed our eyes to the things on the outside. And our attention was drawn to the general conversation of the people from the different parts of the country, the main topics being the War, High Cost of Living, and the Present Administration. After exchanging ideas on these different subjects with a gentleman from California, while we did not agree on all these questions, we agreed to take rest. I soon found myself back in my own car learning to be good the rest of the night.

Well, daylight found us about 645 west of St. Louis at or near Ramon, Kansas. One of the trainmen said to me, you had better examine your watch. He thought I would find it too fast, which I did. I found that I was just one hour fast, so made this correction. I went into the diner for breakfast. We passed through several nice towns on these plains. We soon reached the sugar-beet district. We noticed for a number of miles along the road large fields of beets, indicating the sugar-beet business to be a paying business. We soon passed through Sugar City, a thriving business town. I presume that they manufacture beet sugar there. We soon reached Ordway, Colo., a beautiful town situated in the irrigation district. We saw the finest field of beets and alfalfa we ever dreamed of. It made me think if I were young I would "pitch my tent" in this locality and raise cattle and alfalfa for a livelihood. We soon passed into Pueblo. Here we changed cars for the Springs. We arrived here at 2:15 p. m., July 5th.

Mr. Editor, if this does not reach the waste basket, I may say something about this beautiful city and the surrounding country for the benefit of your readers, who have never seen, and perhaps never will see, this part of our great country.

J. H. ORTEN.

Doing Good.

Few medicines have met with more favor or accomplished more good than Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. John F. Jantzen, Sask., says of it, "I have used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy myself and in my family, and can recommend it as being an exceptionally fine preparation." Obtainable everywhere. PATRIOTIC REGISTRATION
FOR ALL UNITED STATES WOMEN

The Government at Washington has asked the women of the country to register for service.

Governor Gardner has issued a proclamation for Missouri, designating July 28th as "Patriotic Day" and requests that on that day every woman in the State tell the Governor what she is doing and what she is willing to do to help her country during the period of the war. Though the questions are asked whether or not you will go abroad, go any place in the United States, etc., to serve, it should be emphasized that you can save your country nobly without leaving your own home, or your own home town. As to sorts of service now under 154 heads, there is one sort at least to which every woman should pledge herself.

As the registration lists of the women are to be used by two departments of the Government, (1) the Council of National Defense, and (2) The Hoover Administration, each woman of the country, when she goes to register on July 28th, will sign two slips. These will be separately bundled and sent to their respective Washington headquarters.

It is estimated that from Missouri alone will come 1,800,000 registrations.

Of course, the machinery for the organization of the State has been set in motion. There is one vice chairman for each of 9 districts. These Vice Chairmen will appoint an organizer for every county in their district. The county organizers will appoint an organizer for each town in her county. The work of the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense is divided into the following departments: Red Cross, Food Conservation, Relief, Women in Industry, Education, Finance, Speakers and Registration. Until after Patriotic Day, July 28th, every woman in her State is asked as her patriotic duty to concern herself mainly with Registration. Service is divided into trained and untrained, paid and volunteer. There are other divisions of Agriculture, Home Duties, Clerical—in a word, every kind of work for which need may arise if the war continues for a long time.

The Hoover pledge for which registration will be made on the same day and at the same places as the Council of National Defense pledge, is to enroll the housewives of the nation into a National Thrift Army. The plan of procedure has been outlined by Mr. Hoover, and the pledge, uniform over the United States, was written by him.

Newspapers, public speakers and printed matter will be used in the effort to procure on that day of registration of which Missouri will be proud. At the time of this writing, 50 women have pledged themselves as speakers to campaign the State.

Women of the State of Missouri, give written evidence of your patriotism by registering on July 28th.

(Mrs. E. M.) Althea Somerville Crossman, 6032 Clemens Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., Press Committee, Mo. State Suffrage Association.

HESSIAN FLY DAMAGE
REDUCED BY CO-OPERATION

Co-operation among farmers last fall in hessian fly control has resulted in minimizing damage from this pest. T. J. Talbert of the University of Missouri College of Agriculture, who has charge of the hessian fly control in the State, reports that the damage this year is less than it has been in any year during the last five. He believes that had it not been for an unfavorable winter the Missouri yields would have been the largest in that period.

Farmers have a mistaken impression that late seeding was responsible for the poor condition of wheat earlier in the year. This contention is disproved by the condition of wheat in Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, and Nebraska, where no concerted effort was made to control the fly and where farmers sowed on the usual dates. Wheat in those States was damaged more by winter killing than in Missouri.

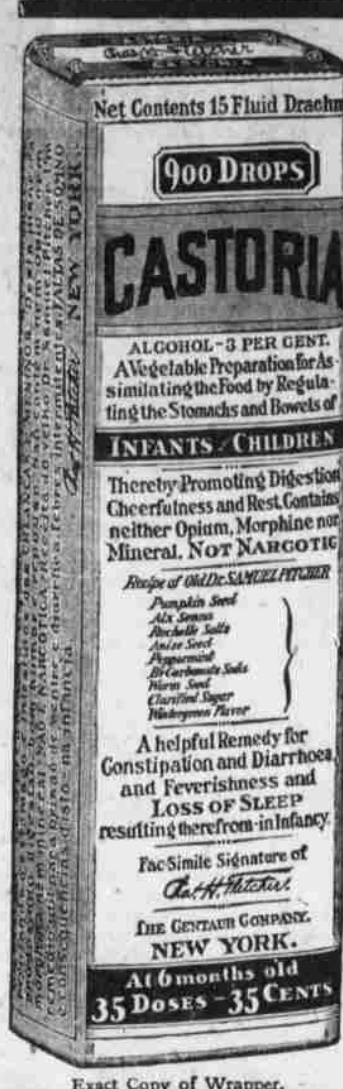

The effective control of hessian fly is illustrated in the Village Creek neighborhood near Fredericktown, Mo. The Village Creek farmers' club was organized especially to fight hessian fly about a year ago. About 60 farmers have been co-operating in fighting the insect. By observing the fly-free date and planting their wheat after the danger of fly was over they have materially reduced the damage from the fly. Mr. Talbert says that no fly was present when he visited that section in December and that none has appeared since. Nearly all of the fields in that section which were sowed before the fly-free date were practically destroyed by December. Owing to dry weather, some of the wheat which was sowed before the fly-free date, did not come up until danger of fly had passed.

Some of the farmers who are displeased with their efforts to control the fly can probably trace the poor condition of their crop to a cause other than seeding after the fly-free date. For instance, one farmer said that his wheat had been severely damaged by winter injury. He remarked that he would not observe the fly-free date this year. It was found that he had sown his wheat October 25, while the fly-free date for his section was October 7. Another farmer said that he had observed the fly-free date and had not obtained the results expected—that his wheat also had been winter killed. When he was questioned concerning the preparation of his land it was learned that he had plowed the land early and had failed to work it down. After it had lain in this unworked condition about two months he attempted to prepare a good seedbed and found that it was impossible. The ground was dry and consequently the wheat did not come up until late in the fall.

FRIENDS OF WOMAN 'SAMMY'
SAY SHE'S JUST A NERVY GIRL

Douglas, Ariz., July 17.—Uncle Sam's first woman "Sammy," apparently the enigma of the army, is not regarded here, where she is known as an "Amazon," but as an ordinary American girl with extraordinary courage and devotion—and enough resourcefulness to see her through any emergency.

And as the wife of Corporal John Carter of an infantry regiment, she met and overcame, temporarily, the obstacle of separation when Corporal John was ordered to France.

Married here a year ago, as Miss Hazel Blower, she determined to accompany her husband to the trenches.

Providing herself with a private's full uniform and war equipment and two weeks' training in military lore, "Private" Carter mustered in with the infantrymen. Willingly she sacrificed her beautiful black hair and discarded her dainty feminine slippers for heavier footgear.

Her father lives in Salem, Ore. Her grandfather, veteran of the Civil and Indian war days, lives here and is proud of his granddaughter's "spunk."

New York, July 17.—Wearing the very latest in feminine "gee-gaws" and a wig of long black hair, Mrs. Hazel Blower Carter, who with her own hair cut short and in a khaki uniform went to France as a soldier of an American transport, so as to be near her soldier husband, prepared to leave here for her home, Douglas, Ariz., today.

"I nearly got away with it," said Mrs. Carter.

Government authorities who had been at a loss to know what to do with the first woman Sammy, were relieved last night by the matron at Hoboken police headquarters.

WAITING FOR RELIEF

H. C. Hoover, the food administrator, (don't say controller) has told Congress how flour is selling in England for only about half as much as the same flour is sold for in this country, and how bacon, potatoes, and other staples are cheaper there than here—even cheaper in Belgium and Germany.

He declares that the speculators are taking $50,000,000 dollars a month from the people.

An American who has just visited our Capitol and who recently left London says that restaurant prices are higher than in London, in spite of the German blockade.

It is strange how a "free" people such as we are will permit things to be manipulated in this way.

In the old days all such "evils" were blamed on the Republican doctrines; the "Robber Tariff," the "Trusts," the "Money Power," etc. But now we have these evils and many more which are being carried on in a very aggravated degree and the Democrats have been in full power for more than four years, and they have not forgotten the fact that they plighted themselves to eliminate it all by hanging the combiners and putting the schemers behind the bars. Can you recall a single instance of such penalty being inflicted for the many offenses of this character committed in the last four years?

The people are given full warning that these much complained of conditions would not be corrected and events are proving the truth of our diagnosis of the case.

With the statute books bursting with new laws, with the Government assuming powers never before dreamed of, the situation is completely out of control and the common citizens are waiting in vain for relief.—The Pathfinder.
